Memphis is, as all are aware, the third receiving point of cotton in the United States; but as yet her position has not been recognized, for it is the intention and interest of sister cities to ignore this fact, and thereby draw to themselves buyers from all the principal markets, and by detracting from our facilities for receiving, shipping and transporting cotton make it appear as if it was necessary for us to uss their ports; and, as it now seems time for us to assert our position, and claim it, it change has spoken of "futures" as one of the future features of the exchange, and advocates its establishment on that ground. If, in addition to this presumptive evidence of death we can confer with the unhappy widow and find only friend and protector, the obituary notice may be safely written. We make this statement of facts applogatically for fear that some model jury, gathered under the wisely bedign laws of Tennessee,

While the APPRAL, very profitably to mankind, has been engaged in the delectable task of knocking lawyers on the head, our neighbor over the way chucks them into the pentionitary, and between the two, the lawyers are having a rough time.

It happened that Mr. B. B. Barnes, an example of the lawyers are of the lawyers are an example of the lawyers. cellent attorney of this city, applied, in behalf of some luckless convicted client of through the medium of our cotton exchange.

Three objects-can be secured at once.

WHAT THE EXCHANGE WILL SECURE FOR MEMPHIS.

First—That Memphis cotton be recognized as such, and quotations be given daily for it, as is now given for upland, Mobile, Orleans or Texas. With reference to this there can be no doubt as to its necessity, for every factor would prefer to know the value of our own peculiar cotton be known in years.

Now, all are left in the dark, Memphis at present being necessarily classed as a plands.

Second—That our classification should be advised to the press of the city and to the press of the city and to the press of the city and to the secolated press.

As to this, it required no argument to continue all of its important to continue a his, for the governor's pardon. The indi-vidual pardoned was William Besuregard, who had forged the signature of Mr. Barnes. The mistake made by our con-temporary was most deployable and indiorous. Surely it is infinitely less culpable to send one of the knights of the gown and greenbag to the bene-yard than to consign him to the penitentiary. Mr. Barnes, we know, would go to — first. In fact, these little blunders and accidents will happen and while mankind is an of wonderful wonderful. Upper Blue Lick Water, as an excellent alterative and specient—a powerful preventive of fevers and billous complaints, and invaluable for removing speedily the effects of excessive eating or drinking. It has recolved the highest commendations of the medical profession, commendations of the medical profession commendations of the medical profession commendations o ent, is consigned to the penitentiar If the story be as incorrigible as that the Mississippi lawyer whom we kills some time ago, we can only say with tearful eyes to our learned friend Barnes, that he should go slong quietly, don a striped jacket and make himself useful for the next ten years in digging stumps on Forrest's or Norton's railroad, ASTONISHING. We had hardly told the foregoing story when Mr. McDowell called to say that he never announced in court the death o olonsi Walter Coleman; that the clerk of the court was wholly mistaken; and that his memorandum formished our reporter was not truthful; and that Colonel

W. H. KENN®DAY, leman's name was accidentally aubsti uted for that of another lawyer by the clerk of the cours. In fact we are not, from this day forth, inclined to believe anything we hear about lawyers. They are the last people who should, and we are satisfied that they are the very last who do kick the bucket.
